I am a passionate educator with a specialization in Pediatric Nursing at the postgraduate level. I currently work as a lecturer, dedicated to guiding young nursing students and fostering their clinical expertise. My postgraduate specialization in this field provides me with a strong foundation to guide students in developing their clinical skills and knowledge. I am particularly interested in innovative teaching methodologies, such as gamification, to enhance student engagement and learning outcomes. My research focuses on improving child health through a multi-faceted approach, including Investigating the crucial role of nutrition in child development and disease prevention and management.
